

Odds and Ends.

A Southern Slaveholder. — A Southern gentleman owned a slave, a very intelligent fellow, who was a Universalist. On one occasion he illustrated the intellectual character of his religion in the following manner: A certain slave had obtained a license of the Baptists to preach. He was holding forth in the presence of many of his colored brethren at one time, when he undertook to describe the process of Adam's creation. Said he, "When God made Adam, he stoop down, scraped up a pile dirt, wet it a little, wove it a little in the hands, and squeezes it in the right shape, and can have it up again—do you see?"

"Top dare, said our Universalist darky. "You say dat are de fustest man ab' me!"

"Satin!" said the preacher.

"Dun," said the other, "jes tell a fol-de-wat dat fence come from?"

"Heah!" said the preacher, "two more questions like dat would split all the eloquence in da world."

A negro who was set to build a small housetop professed the job by drawing after his rale manner a picture of the proposed "bomber" with a piece of chalk on his board. O! being laughed at for making so much fuss over so simple a matter, he replied, "Mass' Wyman, when yo had will your bulle did'nt you pay for rocktyle for a plan?" Pend upon it, Mass' Wyman, do wills for the house wot be no use de was for being skitch'd fair."

PARRY GROD. — A little fellow, about two years old, whose parents reside on Main Street, was noticed as being very noisy a few days since, screaming and crying in childish glee, when he was visited by a lady, who was passing:

"My little man, you feel pretty good, don't you?"

He whined in instant, and replied: "Yes, m'm, I feel good, but I ain't pretty though."

How to Carry your FORTUNE. — Cut your purse relations, and carry as deeply as you can into the pockets of others. Help yourself always first, before you think of helping anybody else, and help no man that is not likely to help you in return. Be careful about forking out until you have secured as much, if not more, than you want.

We are in possession of an infallible receipt for making a lady's checks red without paint. For their especial benefit we publish it without charge. Here it is—place her at the wash tub, with her sleeves rolled up and hands full of dirty clothes. Then let her boil suddenly on, and her checks will be a glowing red in an instant.

A very learned man has said: "The three hardest words to pronounce in the English language are, I was mistaken!" and when Frederick the Great wrote his letter to the Senate, "I have just lost a great battle and it was entirely my own fault." Goldsmith says: "This confession displayed more greatness than all his victories."

The nearest fixed star is Sirius, called the dog-star, which is calculated to be 2,200,000,000 miles from the earth, or twenty-seven thousand times further off than the sun is. A ray of light from Sirius, traveling as fast as a cannon ball at its greatest speed, will take 533,211 years to reach the earth.

Women are unquestionably partial to regiments. Sir Walter Scott, who has never been charged with a want of gallantry, says, in relation to the red uniform of the British officers, that "ladies and turkeys are always attracted by a red rag."

The world is full of judgment-days and into every assembly that man enters, in every action that he attempts, he is gaged and stamped. "What has he done?" is the divine question which searches men, and transpires every false reputation.

ALARMING DISCOVERY. — If it be really true that so many of the missing dogs in our city find their way to the bosom of their masters in the shape of sausages, we are not surprised that, summer, bow-tie'd disorders are so abundant.

A tinker, who squinted awfully, used some time to mourn that his eyes did not agree. "It's very lucky for you," replied his friend, "for if your eye had been matches your nose would have set them on fire long ago."

"Daddy, I want to ask you a question. Well my son?" "Why is neighbor Smith's liquor shop like a counterfeiter's shilling?" "I can't tell my son. — Because you can't pass it," said the boy.

A SIGN OF THE HARD TIMES. — A year or so ago it was said that Brigham Young had forty wives. Now he has but six.

A lady in Holmes county, Mississippi, hung herself a short time since, from mortification on account of her husband having been caught playing cards with a negro.

Of six hundred and twelve young ladies who fainted last year, more than half of them fell in the arms of gentlemen. Only three had the misfortune to fall on the floor.

The Mayville Kentucky Eagle has just entered upon its forty-fourth anniversary of publication. With the single exception of the Paris Citizen, it is the oldest journal in the State.

YANKEE PORTER. — A down-east poet that immortalizes the beautiful river Connecticut:

"Roll on, loved Connecticut, long hast thou run, giving shade to old Hartford, and freedom to man."

Pitt Plat has been appointed Postmaster at Pittsburgh. This alteration is equal to Peter Piper, who picked the pecks of pickled peppers.

Alcohol was first invented and used to stain the cheeks of the ladies of Arabia 933 years ago. It still reddens the human face.

It was the saying of Sir Robert Peel, "I never knew a man to escape failure, in either body or mind, who worked seven days in the week."
